OUR HISTORY

The essence of Children of the Earth began in 1989 as a group of young people from around the world gathered at a beautiful farm in Newfane, Vermont to explore how we as humanity must live together if we are to have a life that is equitable and just and offers harmony for all. In one week these young people met and developed the “Children’s Declaration” which became the foundation of our organization and continues to provide the guiding principles for all our programs.

Children’s Declaration of Peace, Newfane, Vermont 1990

In the name of love, unity and harmony, we, the children of the world, declare that now is the time for peace. As creators of a better tomorrow, we envision social and environmental equilibrium, individual and international cooperation and the fulfillment of human potential as global goals.

To achieve equilibrium, education must be available to all. This education should not only include academic, but also personal, moral and spiritual development. With this education, we can increase our awareness of global problems and develop our ability to solve them.

The freedom accorded to all people through education shall be accompanied by the responsibility that will serve to bridge the gaps between economic, religious, material, political and cultural extremes.

As part of the earth’s living system, our harmonious co-existence with nature is essential for the sustainability of humanity.

We pledge our support to the United Nations. However, we also stress the need for a more equitable distribution of power to all countries to encourage the evolution of peace. We desire self-determination for all people and hope that the emerging leaders guide rather than govern.
