Life is pretty demanding these days. Still, someone simply has to start taking better care of the kids! They will inherit our legacy and our world someday, and they desperately need our protection and guidance right now!

The innate compassion of children needs to be tapped. Their passion needs to be harnessed. Someone needs to pull all of their issues together into constructive programs that will inspire and unite young people as they undergo their personal and social transformation. This is the ONLY way to assure the peace and sustainability of our future world.

Fortunately, we have someone doing just that. Dr. Nina Meyerhof, president of Children of the Earth, is constantly running all over the world for the sake of the kids.

Her site explains it this way: We deliver programs, which provide young people with the empowerment and leadership skills necessary to advance peace in the world today and in the future. We foster building networks of cooperation, multicultural understanding, spiritual values, and ethical living skills.

Dr. Meyerhof's Social Action Chapters and Spirit Youth Hubs are located in countries around the world. They are run by our volunteers and supported by advisors, guides, and board and administrative staff spread over 6 continents.

She just got back from a “monumental” trip to Nepal during which she was interviewed by television and a very prominent Nepalese magazine from her base in a spartan Buddhist guesthouse.

Also earlier this month, there was a youth session in Vermont with two of the indigenous Grandmother's leading the talking circle. Developed by youth, for youth, this discussion allowed youth to address issues important to them. With topics varying from plant wisdom, to intercultural peacemaking....

There will be a youth gathering in Nigeria August 1, and another one in West Africa later that month.

There will also be a youth gathering in Romania in August. And here is a list of their international conferences.

*“One by one, Children of the Earth inspires young people to explore their inner life, be socially responsible and unite in peace building. And there are many ways for you to get involved.

One simple way is to hit "Like" at the top of this article. Maybe others can do more than you can right now, but getting the word out is the beginning.
